A long debate arose, participated in by Hawley, Blair, Ingalls and Bayard, at the conclusion of which the Senate, without atives for the overthrow of the Stockton Conventionists. Such an assertion is abso lutely false, because I assume that the author of the letter by conservatives means monopolists. I recognize that the Stockton Convention has the sound sentiments of the bedrock Democrats of the State of California, in antagonism to every railroad monopolist from Leland Stanford down, in and out of the Democratic party. I am prepared to maintain, and it will be more and more obvious as time passes, that the contest going on in California between the true Democrats and the monoplists will finally, to a great extent, be transferred to Washington. This I regret exceedingly, but when it comes I have but one course on held by it in California.

Value of Stones in Land-Trees for Fences-Good Butter Cows-The Canker-worm-Etc.

Some people, on every occasion when opportunity offers, take pains to remove all their gardens. Perhaps it might not be Stones in soil serve more than one useful purpose. When lying on the surface tribute to the replacement of the food extheir action is particularly beneficial, as they break up its coherency and modify the texture. Professor Wrightson, in his handbook on "Agriculture," says: "Many soils now worked as light lands would be unworkable clay were they not lightened up and divided by countless stones." It is true, light, stony soils soon dry up, the water easily percolating through them, and, subsoil being generally of the same character, water is soon drained away. Further, stones absorb no moisture, the amount of moisture absorbed by the soil being in the inverse ratio (other cow depend more on the sire's mother than things being equal) to the quantity of upon her own mother. THE ORCHARD LANDS OF LONG AGO.

The orchard lands of Long Ago! O drowsy winds, awake and blow The snowy blossoms back to me, And all the buds that used to be! Blow back along the grassy ways Of truant feet, and lift the baze Of happy summer from the trees That trail their tresses in the seast Of grain that float and overflow The orchard lands of Long Ago!

Blow back the melody that slips n lazy laughter from the lips, That marvel much that any kiss Is sweeter than the apple's is.
Blow back the twitter of the birds—
The lisp, the titter and the words of merriment that found the shine
Of summer time a glorious wine
That drenched the leaves that loved it so In orchard lands of Long Ago !

O Memory! alight and sing O Memory! alight and sing
Where rosy-beliled pippins cling.
And golden russets glint and gleam
As in the old Arabian dream
The fruits of that enchanted tree
The glad Alladin robbed for me!
And, drowsy winds, awake and fan
My blood as when it overran
A heart ripe as the apples grow
In orchard lands of Long Ago!

"Only a very few, and then I should have missed the most delightful experience of all my life," I answered fervently.
"But it was a case of life and death, my child," she added gently; and I felt she had given me a reproof.

My trunks were soon packed by Justine, who accompanied me to England. Sir Charles C—, as my legal guardian, also insisted on going with me, and late on the following night we were driven through the moonless darkness of country roads to Crowsnest. A stately housekeeper met us in the hail.

"Miss Northcote, you come too late," she said, and there was more austerity than sadness in her tone. "My dear mistress died three hours ago. If you had left Paris last night you would have been here" the country the most cast this blight upon my life? Why did she haunt me? Was it such a heinous crime not to have gone in time to see her die?

Suddenly I became possessed with a strange longing to visit Crowsnest—to see again the weird apparition that had exercised so subtle an influence on my life. With the persistent waywardness of a spoiled child I insisted on going to Crowsnest. I insisted also that no one but Justine should accompany me. My indulgent guardian yielded to my wishes, and I went. But not once during my month's visit did I see the haunted face. I believed then that my persecution was ended.

Thus wrote John Lydgate, the monk of Bury, before the year 1440, and many a pen since his time has, in both prose and verse, made mention of St. Valentine's Day, and the peculiar customs connected

It is a curious fact that no possible connection can be traced between these varied

I underwent a change. Though I spoke of what I had seen to no one, I was, nevertheless, sensitively conscious that Mrs. Stevens remarked something amiss with me. I was even morbidly fearful that she had suspicion of the cause. I was convinced of this one morning when she said—not by any means unkindly:

-St. Valentine's day. Fenn's Paston Letters show unquestionably that the custom of choosing valentines was practiced among the gentry in England in 1476. An allusion to it was made in several epistles, one of which we give in wherefore, if ye could be content with that good and my poor person, I would be the merriest maiden on ground; and if ye think not your self so satisfied, or that ye might have much more good, as I have understood by you afore, good, true and loving Valentine, that ye take no such labor upon you as to come more for that matter, but let (what) is pass and never more to be spoken of as I may be your true lover and be spoken of, as 1 may be your true lover and brad-woman during my life. No more unto you at this time, but Almighty Jesus preserve you both body and soul, etc.

By your Valentine, MARGERY BREWS. From Pepys, that most amusing and candid of diarists, we learn that in the time of Charles II. the choosing of valentines was not confined to the single alone, and that the person chosen was invariably expected to give a present to the choosing party. On Valentine's Day, 1667, Pepys writes: "This morning came up to my wife's bedside (I being up dressing myself) little Will Mercer to be her Valentine, and brought her name written upon blue paper in letters of gold, done by himself, very pretty; and we were both well pleased with it. But I am also this year my wife's Valentine, and it will cost me £5; but that I must have laid out if we had not been Valentines." Two days after he adds: "I find that Mrs. Pierce's little girl is my Valentine, she having drawn me; for which I was not sorry; it easing me of something more that I must have given to others. But here I do first observe the fashion of drawing mottoes as well as names, so that Pierce, and this girl drew another for me. What mine was I forgot, but my wife's was 'Most courteous and most fair.'" Soon afterwards, in alluding to the jewels of the celebrated Miss Stuart, who became Duchess of Richmond, Pepys says: guish themselves by their flavor and aromatic odor above all others used, but they tipe did give her a jewel of about £800. tine did give her a jewel of about £800, and my Lord Mandeville, her Valentine this year, a ring of about £300."

In February, 1668, he writes: "This evening my wife did with great pleasure shew me her stock of jewels, increased by "THE best is the cheapest." This is an the ring she hath made lately as my Valdiseases of the liver, kidneys and bladder had, she reckons that she hath above one it, for it is fit the wretch should have their mates, and that, some mysterious influence of the day extending to men, the first unmarried person one met of the opposite sex was destined to become the future wife or husband. Pepys says, February 14, 1662: "I did this day purposely shun to be seen at Sir W. Batten's, because would not have his daughter to be my Valentine as she was last year, there being no great friendship between us now as ormerly. This morning in comes W. Bower, who was my wife's Valentine, she having, at which I made good sport to myself, held her hands all the morning that she might not see the paynters that were at work in gilding my chimney-piece and picture in my dining-room."

A young miss, who signs herself Arabella Whimsey, in a letter to the editor of the Connoisseur, gives us a glimpse of some of the curious and absurd practices connected with St. Valentine's day in her time. She appears to have devoted herself to trying all manner of superstitions spells for the determining of love affairs. and under date of February 17, 1755, writes: "Last Friday, Mr. Towne, was Valentine's day, and I'll tell you what I did the night before. I got five bay leaves and pinned four of them to the four corners of my pillow, and the fifth in the niddle, and then if I dreamt of my sweetheart, Betty said we should be married before the year was out. But to make it more sure, I boiled an egg hard, took out he yolk, and filled it with salt, and when went to bed ate it, shell and all, without peaking or drinking after it. We also wrote our lovers' names on bits of paper and rolled them up in clay and put them into water, and the first that rose up was to be our Valentine. Would you think it? Mr. Blossom was my man! I lay abed and shut my eyes all the morning till he came to our house, for I would not have seen another man before him for all the world."

Misson, who lived in the early part of the last century, says in his "Travels in England: "On the eve of St. Valentine's day the young folks of England and Scot land, by a very ancient custom, celebrate a little festival. An equal number of maids and bachelors get together; each writes their true or some feigned name upon sepa Butler tells us in his "Lives of the rate billets, which they roll up, and draw by way of lots, the maids taking the men's oillets and the men the maids'; so that family, assisted the martyrs in the perse- each of the young men lights upon a girl whom he calls his Valentine, and each o Prefect of Rome, who, on finding all his calls hers. This is to certify that I am well acquainted with a man 50 years of age, for many years a resident of this city, who has been at times extremely ill, but could not teil from what cause, unless it was worms. He told his attending physician his suspicions, but the physician at once ridiculed the idea, and refused to attend him any longer. His son then mentioned Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and asked him if he would take it; his reply was—I must take something to to get relief, or die.

They at once procured a bottle of Dr. C. McLane's Vermifuge, and he took one dose. The result was he passed upwards of three quarts of worms, cut up in every form. He got well immediately, and is now enjoying excellent health; and, like the good Samaritan of old, is endeavoring to relieve his unfortunate neighbors. He makes it his business to hunt up and select all cases similar to his own, that may be given over by regular physicians, and induces them to try Dr. McLane's Vermifuge. So far he has induced more than twenty persons to take the Vernifuge, prepared by Fleming Bros., Pittsburgh, Pa., is far superior to any other known remedy, and if more generally known would not fail to save many valuable lives. When the Church does this can it not very largely command and control popular amusements, and is not control always preferable to antagonism? When the Church, for the good possible in the future, undertakes in the present to mold the drama, for instance, it will find popular opinion more ready than is generally believed to adapt itself to the better forms of the drama, and those representations that not even the most exacting of the Church will disapprove. In fact the Church does not condemn the drama, since potency for good and ill. It draws the line at the theater, and refuses to step over it for the rescue of the drama from the descrated temple. In short, it would seem to prefer bombardment at ineffective long-range. It is replied that attempts in this direction have failed; that a theater free from that the Church must condemn, cannot be maintained, and that experiments in that direction have proved abortive. But it is a question whether such efforts have been made by right agencies. Again, any such reform as should be contemplated is not the work of a day, or a year, or a decade. The real question is

A SIDE IRRIGATION QUESTION.

From Placer, El Dorado and Amador counties come complaints to us in a matter of irrigation, which, the complainants insist, are not covered by the provisions of the present law, nor of any of the proposed water bills. It is set forth that where there are established ditches of companies serving water in the foothills, it frequently occurs that a consumer can only procure the water by means of a service line that must cross the lands of others. The upper proprietor has it thus in his power to com-The Pope intends to proclaim the canoniza- pel the lower land-owner to pay him whatsoever the former chooses to charge for the right of way. In some cases this levy has amounted to extortion, and in others flat refusal to permit the transportation of the water has cut off the lower land-owners entirely. In Placer county it is said no remedy has been found adequate, and in not a few cases owners are driven to pumping from wells in consequence. It is asked that the right be given, under proper re strictions, to condemn a right of way from a supply-ditch to a consumer across the lands of an intermediate owner. Practically we know of more than one case where grave injury has been done to large interests from the mere surly refusal to permit of the needed transportation of the water. The foothills people, who lay the complaint, insist that they should be given the right of way, after fair compensation, irrespective of the organization of irrigation districts, and that their need should Sacramento does more than her share in the care of streets and public ways about the Capitol. The Legislature evidently recognizes the duty of the State to make the approaches to the Capitol passable, and will order a small appropriation to repair a short walk way, which has by the wear of many years gone to ruin. Yet this is one of the measures which the San Francisco Chronicle in its awful wisdom suggests may have "a job in it." What a mighty job must reside in a measure for a short strip of new walk way, and the removal of an old and broken substitute that has dis graced the grounds for years, and which the State itself has broken up by use as a platform for its stonecutters. But of such is the snarling wisdom of suspicious journalism born of a capacity for low things.

REVIEW OF BOOKS.

The talented President of Yale, Noah Porter, D. D., LL.D., has just given to the thoughtful world a work that should comnand a place in every library, public aluable to the well-informed reader. It resupposes some familiarity with psycho ogical and philosophical studies and a willour conviction is positive that the book would be clearly comprehensible by the general reader, and even by those who make this their first effort in the study of moral science or of psychologic and philoso phical topics. The pages of the v re as clear as crystal; there is no confusio of thought; no doubt or timidity in expression, and not a line that is no direct and imprinted with the earnest of conviction. Whoever, for instance, will take up the subdivision on "Duties to Our Fellowmen" cannot fail to comprehend the teachings of its pages; he will find nothing involved and no proposi tion stated that does not address itself directly to the reason by logical courses Compared with Hicock, Porter is clearer in his perceptions and more forcible in ex-pression, while his style is characterized by greater finish and the evidences of more cultured scholarship. Such a work as that before us, embracing nearly 600 pages, is not to be analyzed within the limits permissible in these columns at this time. must suffice to say that it is one of the most forcible, clear and rational expositions of the day; that it is not a scholasti treatise merely: it is as broad as the realm of thought, and its conservatism is that of conviction. The venerable author himsel says, in referring to the opinions expressed, that these, and the grounds for them, are the fruits of more or less reading and reflection, and that none of them have been in-considerately adopted. Suggesting that some may think he has treated the theory of morals with too great fullness and mi-nuteness, he says: "In the view of the Commons alone will have the right of writer, the most, if not all, of these theoretical questions have a more or less directly practical bearing, and are sure to b important in the crises of actual life.' adds, for the completeness of this part of the work, a somewhat full and critical ex hibition of the progress of ethical speculation is also required. Such an historical sketch the author had intended to furnish but was deterred by the fear of making his treatise inconveniently large. Further on in his modest intro-duction this eminent logician says "The practical discussions and enforce ments may seem to some to be too long

ROAD IMPROVEMENT.—Business men of the city are considering a proposition for the permanent improvement of Sacramento | the substitutes to be injurious to the health. putting them in first-class condition for winter as well as summer use. The plan suggested is for the county to issue bonds to the amount of, say, $150,000, at 4½ per cent. to run thirty years, the money to be devoted to the repairing of bridges and the improvement of all the roads. There are some that will require macadanizing as they run through an adobe country, and at cask, bottle, or other vessel containing ferpresent are almost impassable after the winter rains commence. BOARD OF SUPERVISORS .- The Board met Mr. Steinman. Bids for constructing trestle- part (other than water) of which or from work on the Twelfth-street road were received from fourteen bidders, and on being opened were found to range from $3 31 to $5 85 per lineal foot, no two being alike, and that of D. Finley being the lowest by seventeen cents. On motion, the bids were referred to the Contract Committee, which was allowed until 10 a. m. of Monday next to report. Mr. McMullen moved that the sum of $100 be taken out of the general road fund, and the balance out of the county general fund, to pay for building these bridges and making approaches thereto. Carried unanimously. Board adjourned until Monday, at 10 A. M. It is estimated that there will be somewhere in the neigh prhood of 2,000 feet of trestlework to be built, which, at the lowest price bid, will make the cost about $6,600, or may be

California's Hop Crop.

The raising of hops in California is ousiness largely engaged in, and no doubt will become one of the leading industries in the near future. So far, it is confined to the central and northern sections of the State, in the vicinity of Sacramento and in the counties of Yolo, Lake, Sonoma, Napa and Mendocino. The hops grown in this State are of good quality, although it is claimed that the best article is raised in what is called the Russian River section. The only hops raised in southern California are grown in Los Angeles county, where there are two small yards, aggregating about 35 acres, and which produced the past season about 300 bales. George W. Hubbard, agent for a large firm in Philadelphia, which deals exclusively in hops, is at present in the city. In conversation with a reporter yesterday, he said he had located at Tustin City, in Los Angeles county, where he proposed to reside in the future. He has just completed a tour of the hop section of the State, has the name of every producer, the acreage cultivated, and the amount raised last season by each. In Sonoma valley, near Santa Rosa, 376 acres produced 3,760 bales; near Healdsburg, the crop is estimated at about 900 bales; Lakeport, Lake county, 600 bales; Upper Lake, 400 bales; Ukiah, 4,500 bales; Covello, 1,500 bales; Calpella, 700 bales; Hop Ranch, 1,600 bales. The last four named places are in Mendocino county. ty. The crop in that county was of excel-lent quality, but it costs $20 a ton to con-vey it to the railroad. In Napa valley, 1,000 bales; Los Angeles county, 300 bales; in the neigborhood of Sacramento, 23,000 bales. Other sections not enumerated, about 7,740 bales. Total amount of the

From this statement, which has been compiled by Mr. Hubbard with great care, it will be seen that in the immediate vicinity of Sacramento city is raised one-half of the hop crop of the State. He says that not the hop crop of the State. He says that not one bale in twenty of last season's crop has gone into the hands of the consumer. Almost the entire crop is still in the hands of the producers and dealers, and for the most part it is held in warehouses for growers, many of whom have received advances on their storage re-ceipts. Several thousand bales are stored in this city. The crop of 1885 will be ready to market in August next, five months serted by wild fowl, it is said that the hence. The Lyons Concert. A good audience, and a thoroughly appreciative one, attended the Lyons Concert last night. When it is stated that last night the largest audience for many months filled the theater, and that a musical entertainment in another hall and a dramatic performance in still another, were also largely attended, it will be realized that it was highly complimentary to Miss Lyons. that in so small a community she should was the lightest noticed; in fact, there did also draw an excellent audience on the occasion of her first appearance. The programme as yesterday announced was faithday evening in Trinity Church, Folsom, the evening service in St. Paul's Church, in received a hearty welcome from his old friends, who were gratified to bear testimony to his marked advancement. Mr. Lyons, who played the violin, in the opening number—with Mansfeldt at the piano and Vogt at the organ, the three accompanying Miss Lyons in Gounod's "Ava Maria"—played with ease and modesty, and proved that a nonprofessional may find place and credit at times among the highly skilled, by firm Mamie Lyons came before a strange audiserve a term of eight years on a charge of ence, and one that by expectation had been led to assume a severely critical attitude.
Naturally the lady was somewhat nervous
—something to be expected on a first appearance. She practiced none of the arts of the stage, and in her manner there was no exertion made to warm the audience toward her. She has yet to learn, apparently, the usefulness of those dramat arts by which even the best of audiences are influenced. Possessed of fine stage presence, pleasing countenance and graceful carriage, she might easily have won something of personal favor in that way had she pleased to do so. She stood, therecity are reported to be almost entirely defore, to be judged by the simple merit of her tones. It is to be said that she was highly successful. The lady, evidently yet from San Francisco, with two barges loaded in her twenties, convinced her hearers that she is gifted with vocal powers, the possibilities of which will gain her, as she advances, a secure place in lyric art. If there is to be mentioned any lack, it is perhaps that of fervor and earnestness of feeling. But these are arts; acquired in music last evening upon the celebration of precisely as they are in the drama; assumptions that constitute the pith and core of dramatic, and quite as often of musical organization, on being asked to do so. successes. EDS. RECORD-UNION: It is now a week since the attention of the Board of Health was called to the fact that that portion of the city lying between Tenth. Thirteenth, N and R streets, was invaded by a most sickening stench, and that relief was demanded by the people living about there. But the offensive odor was just as strong and penetrating, in fact, that it could no even be shut out from dwellings, bu invaded all parts of them. Already diph theria has made its appearance, and it is said that in one family there are two children so low with that dread dis ease that they are expected to die at any moment. It is evident that to one of two things all this trouble can be traced. Either the Thirteenth-street sewer needs flushing and cleansing, or else the rottenest sort of stuff is being deposited in the dump piles just over the R-street levee. I have seen barrels of decomposed mackerel, salt pork and canned goods that had spoiled, dead animals and all sorts of garbage carted nto the excavations there in the past, and no doubt such things are being done at this time. But it should be an easy matter for somebody in authority to determine what the trouble is, and then to remove the cause. If something be not done soon to correct the evil, people will have to aban-

About 10 o'clock a physician was sum moned, who, at midnight, considered the trouble over. He was recalled three hours later, the bleeding having broken out again, and continuing notwithstanding all efforts to check it. Early in the forenoon another physician was called in consultation, and at 1 P. M. the hemorrhage was stopped, but before that result was attained Mr. Phillips had lost so much blood that he

FOOTSTEPS OF ANGELS. When the hours of day are numbered, And the voices of the night Wake the better soul, that slumbered, To a holy, calm delight;

Ere the evening lamps are lighted And like phantoms grim and tall, Shadows from the fitful fire-light Dance upon the parlor wall; Then the forms of the departed,

Enter at the open door: The beloved, the true-hearted, Come to visit me once more; They, the holy ones and weakly, Who the cross of suffering bore, Folded their pale hands so meekly Spake with us on earth no more!

And with them the Being Beauteous, Who unto my youth was given, More than all things else to love me, And is now a saint in heaven. With a slow and noiseless footstep

Comes that messenger divine,

Takes the vacant chair beside me,

Lays the gentle hand in mine, And she sits and gazes at me With those deep and tender eyes, Like the stars, so still and saintlike, Looking downward from the skies.

Uttered not, yet comprehended, Is the spirit's voiceless prayer. Soft rebukes, in blessings ended Breathing from her lips of air. Oh, though oft depressed and lonely, All my fears are laid aside, If I but remember only Such as these have lived and died! -[Longfellow

FOOTHILL LANDS.

Inquiries Made Concerning Them-What They Will Produce.

During the past few years we have re ceived many letters from people all over the Eastern. Middle and Northwestern States, making inquiries in regard to our foothill lands, such as quality, fertility, prices, climate, facilities for marketing, healthfulness, etc., and we have answered many in a general way. This goes to show that our section is by no means wholly un-known to intending immigrants from those frigid sections. There will be an immense mmigration to this State this season, and we have no reason to doubt that the footnills will be sought much more than heretofore by that class. It is for their interest o come and it is surely our interest to have them come. We should cordially welcome them as they do come among us seeking homes, and put ourselves in a position to give them all the information they may lesire, and assist them in finding suitable ducements.—[Placerville Observer.

Vhile there is nothing in the name, there s much of interest in the man. Wright air and side whiskers and mustache, frizzled and curly, and black and gray. Of sixty-eight years of age, he not only retains almost the energy of youth, but has met with peculiar good fortune, under extraordinary difficulties. Born as a slave in 1817, in Virginia, he was freed by Joshua Joffin, and left for Pennsylvania, where h resided for some years. The abolitionists before the war made quite a stir about his nap him. At length, when twenty-three years of age, Captain Wilson, then an agent of the slavedealers' association, managed to obtain possession of the man, and sold him to Mr. Botts, of New Orleans. Managing to escape, he went to New York. From thence he came to California in 1850 with Nathaniel Gray, on board the Sarah Sands. He left behind him a wife and two children. On arriving in this State, fearful lest he should be returned to his owners, he wandered around the mines, and subse quently went to the Hawaiian Island, and being the same man who sold him into slavery after being freed, would attempt to place him in slavery again. At the time referred to California was in an unsettled state, and every effort was being made not only to make it a slave State, but to return the slaves who had gained their liberty to and family, all of whom he believed to be dead. The man's adventures would fill a volume, for he has seen much of the world, and has had his ups and downs, wealthy eparation of over a quarter of a century. Such incidents are purely American, and speak deeper truths of the permanency of

Should be made as early as possible, so that the best stocks may be procured at the proper time. It has been my practice to engage in advance large lots of the most desirable varieties, so as to have them made early and ready to fill orders; but this has subjected me to frequent losses, which necessity compels me to avoid as much as possible in inture. Those who are prudem will order early and receive their stocks as soon as they are ready for delivery. The practice of disinfecting cuttings and roots as soon as received should be the constant rule throughout the State. Disease may possibly exist where it is least expected. The length of ordinary cuttings, as usually made, is eighteen to twenty inches between terminal buds. When longer ones are desired the order should be specific, but prices for unusual lengths, made to order, will be subject to variation.

Cuttings are frequently made by inexperienced Cuttings are frequently made by inexperienced

Cuttings are frequently made by inexperienced workmen, and for this reason should be carefully sorted by the purchaser when received. The base should be cut, if necessary, close to the lowest bud, and doubtful qualities should be laid aside for the nursery, which all prudent planers provide for so as to have rooted stocks to take the place of cuttings that may not grow. It is best to make allowance for at least twenty-five per cent. loss. If the nursery should contain, fortunately, more than are needed the roots can be sold at a profit.

Wherever aloss of twenty per cent. or more may be reasonably expected, if cuttings are used, it will be cheaper, all things considered, to purchase rooted vines. A loss of twenty per cent in one hundred acres planted means a loss of the expense of planting and cultivating twenty acres, besides the loss of time, which will result in a reduction of the crop of the third and fourth years of a proportionate amount, besides the derangement of the regularity in the growth of the vines, the stronger ones robbing the weaker. It also complicates the pruning, which must be practiced according to the development of the vineyard. In places where a very small percentage of loss is feared, cuttings are generally preferred to roots. Some varieties take root with comparative difficulty; others with great facility. In loose, warm, well-drained but moist soils, cuttings generally root easily. In cold clay soils, and in dry surface alluvions, especially when they are subject to bot north winds, the danger of loss is great and rooted vines are in most demand. For most parts of the San Joaquin and Sacramento valleys and the Sierra foothills, rooted vines will often be preferred.

The general practice is to cut the roots back

The general practice is to cut the roots back The general practice is to cut the roots back near the base before planting, and to prune the tops to one short spur with two buds.

In planting seedling resistant vines it is best to trim off all the lateral roots for a space of about three inches below the crown, so as to develop a good main root to graft into, and to avoid waste of root development, which must be cut away in grafting. be cut away in grafting.

Stocks of the Natoma Vineyard.

Stocks of the Natoma Vineyard.

During the last two seasons the Natoma Water and Mining Company has planted with great care about two thousand acres of the choicest vines in the State. It was their intention to plant one thousand acres more during the coming season, and for this purpose a large nursery was established. Owing to a postponement of further planting these nursery stocks are offered through me for sale. This opportunity for obtaining desirable rooted vines, from a nursery made in virgin soil, free from vine pests, all the cuttings having also been carefully disinfected before planting, is a fortunate one for many new planters, especially for those in the interior of the State who may desire vines acclimated to their peculiar conditions. planters, especially for those in the interior of the State who may desire vines acclimated to their peculiar conditions.

This company offers also a stock of cuttings of similar varieties, all of which will be put up carefully by experienced men.

Most interesting will be their offering of cuttings from imported rare varieties which have been propagated by grafting in 1883, upon old vines. As they require to use most of these stocks infuture for their own plantings, the opportunity to obtain them now should not be neglected by those who expect to need them, or who wish to test their values. Those who have old vines requiring improvement by grafting may make useful experiments and so determine rapidly whiten varieties are best suited to their wants. The State University has done this year a valuable work in making experimental fermentations from the fruit of these grafts, which will aid in determining their true values. They were, however, not selected at random, but comprise the best known in different parts of France, Spain, Portugal and Madeira. When suitably located in California we may expect them to prove as satisfactory to our vine-growers as they are in Europe.

Knight said it was embarrassing for him to say anything against the bill after seeing so many of the unfortunates around the Legislature, and after having heard that they shed tears when the bill passed the Assembly, and that there was applause in the gallery, and all these surrounding influences. Yet it did seem an unwise measure. For fifteen years he had visited every day the County Hospital where he lived, and there were two adult blind there, and the Senate again that this bill has been urged totally and solely upon the ground of sympathy. He abjured such a course. He admitted it was a grand theme for the orator. It had been in sinuated that he was marble-hearted and coldhearted. He did not claim all the sympathy in the world, but he did not think it was necessary for a man to be raised in the mountains of Mono to have a heart in him. He did not think it was good policy for the State to establish this institution at the present time without further investigation. Because a report happened to have Dr. Wilkins' name on it, the Senator from Mono had presumed that he had marked it, and was lobbying against his bill, and he had criticised Dr. Wilkins.

Johnson of Sonoma said he was sorry that the Senator from Napa had taken the position of the State assuming any responsibility for these moneys until the County Treasurers shall have exhausted all legal methods to recover the stolen sums.

The previous question (to strike out the enacting clause) being demanded, the roll was called, ing clause) being demanded to sums.

Henley, Munday and Barnett spoke further in support of the bill, and Firebaugh and Dooling against it.

The bill was then ordered to engrossment and a third reading by a vote of 37 ayes to 31 noes.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

By May—To authorize the County Treasurers shall have exhausted all legal methods to recover the stolen sums.

Senator from Napa had taken the position of antagonizing the bill. Wherever our sympathies are strong they are apt to be right; they are founded in our moral nature, and there is a prompting that a certain course is the proper course. If this was a matter of sympathy, he urse. If this was a matter of sympathy, he ought it was right, but it was simply a question of duty.

Motion to strike out the enacting clause was Langford offered an amendment, changing Langiotte and $80,000 to $10,000. Lost. Cox offered an amendment, reducing the appropriation from $80,000 to $20,000. Lost. Reddy offered an amendment, reducing the spropriation to $50,000.

Spencer of Stanislaus offered an amendment, reducing the appropriation to $40,000.

On the vote being taken, Spencer of Napa voted aye, and Reddy said he understood Senator Spencer was paired with Senator Parkinson.

Son. Spencer of Napa—That is the first time my vote has ever been questioned. I was paired with Senator Parkinson on the motion to strike out the enacting clause. Nothing else. Amendment carried.

McClure, in moving that the bill be indefinitely postponed, said: It seems to me there is a disposition here, without regard to the facts surrounding this charity; without any reason at all, to vote $10,000, or $20,000, or $60,000 or $80,000 out of the Treasury, what to do? To establish a State institution independent of every other institution in the State. This bill provides for the election of a General Superintendent and Amendment carried.

McClure—I deny the point of order. I stated the substitute left out the engagement of legal counsel. I do not desire to be interrupted in that way, nor shall I — Reddy—I made a point of order, and I shall do that ht all times I care to do so. McClure—I say you ought not to interrupt me in the middle of a sentence. I read this to show this scheme, and we are asked to pass this without any knowledge of the facts surrounding this charity. We are not told how many blind require the charity of the State. At least two-thirds of the blind in this State are not seeking any charity at our hands. I say there are no facts to warrant us in voting $40,000, or $50,000 or $60,000 out of the Treasury, and we know that the general appropriation bill upon which we will soon be called to act, exceeds the appropriation of 1883 by $400,000. It is time to cry halt. I am told every dollar in the Treasury to-day has been appropriated. When we come to evercise the duty of making appropriations, let us exercise it in view of the facts and not be carried away with maudlin sentimentality. I am not going to discharge myself of any blame for hard-heartedness, nor am I going to enlogize myself for large heartedness or generosity. I desire to discuss this question merely as a question of policy. I see no disposition on the part of the friends, of this bill to allow a reasonable amount to start that charity. We are asked to start a new institution at a cost of $80,000, and all this machinery of subordinate officers, without regard to their salaries, or what they will have to do; without regard to whether there will be forty or fifty persons to be taken into the institution.

Jordan defended the motives of the committee in making the report. The committee required some information from the Executive Department, as they had a right to do, for the status of certain bills before the House depended upon the receipt of such information.

Treasury. So far as the County Treasurers knew, the money was simply allowed to remain in the State Treasury on account, while as a matter of fact they assumed the character of special deposits. These depositors did not violate the law, for the law authorized them to make deposits whenever they thought best, and they naturally considered the State Treasury the safest place for depositing money. The State safest place of positing money. The State safest place safest place of positing money. The State safest place has always prevailed and should be recognized a the law. He opposed it—not because it prohibited public slogging matches—but for the reason, as he insisted, that it was calculated to interfere with one very important and useful branch of gymnasium practice. He claimed that the present law, if enforced, would prevent brutal slogging matches, and that Gregory's bill went so far as to become pernicious. But the sentiment of the Assembly was in sympathy with Gregory, who has been very earnest in the advocacy of his bill. It remains to be seen how the Senate will treat the bill, but it is to be hoped that the measure will be promptly passed. The San Francisco Iron Strike. San Francisco, February 13th .- The iron workers and the iron manufacturers had not, at noon day, reached any agreement by which work will be resumed in the Union, National, Risdon, Fulton, Empire and Pa cific shops. Workers and manufacturers On motion of Coleman, the vote by which agree on one proposition, namely: That it Assembly Concurrent Resolution No. 2, relating is, at least for the present, merely a question of endurance. The manufacturers say that they have no proposition to make. The employes say they will not accept any reduction. This is precisely the attitude which has been maintained from the first day of the strike. Only a small number of employes were in the vicinity of the shops to-day. These few said that there was nothing new, except that they were still holding out. The meetings of committees have not brought the manufacturers and employes nearer together. The committees have not been authorized to act. Up to noon no shop, except the six named, was reported to have reduced wages. The Assembly Bill No. 89, to establish a home for smaller shops are running as usual. Sevebele-minded children, was read third time eral manufacturers in the larger shops say that they are not pressed by contracts. Those who had work underway, so manufacturers say, have consented to wait. Important Reduction in Rates on Fruit.

SAN FRANCISCO, February 13th.—The Southern Pacific and connecting lines have made an important reduction in rates on oranges and raisins from lower California points East, and thereby have stimulated the shipment of both articles, and at the present time from six to seven carloads are being shipped over the road daily to points in the East. The reduction on oranges is $200 a car, and on raisins $200. The oranges are higher appreciated in New York, and sell readily at an advance of 25 per cent. over the Florida fruit.

A few friends, however, labored all day yester-day, and up to the time of the execution, to get Governor Moody to reprieve him, but the Governor sternly refused. The prisoner kept up his spirits, but refused the consultation or advice of ministers. The scaffold was erected in the jail-yard, and a high fence was built around it. No on was admitted except members of the city press, officials and several friends of the condemned man. When led upon the trap he looked at his left side, as he faced south and said to one of his attendants, "Th is what they are going to hang n with." He appeared quite composed an betrayed very little nervousness at any time After the reading of the death warrant, th Sheriff asked the doomed man if he had anything to say, in response to which h said: "Well, I don't know as I can say great deal. I can't help it, I suppose. That is all there is about it." Here he stopped but was again asked if he had anythi further to say, when he said: "Well, don't see what I can say. I have got to go I suppose I must die," and added a fer rambling sentences, which showed that hi mind was not upon his words. Even in his last moments he betrayed no sign of breaking down, and said "good-by" with an unfaltering voice. His legs were then shackled and his arms pinioned behind him, after which the noose was adjuste around his neck and the black cap drawn over his head and neck. A moment of intense silence was followed by touching the head of a nail near the scaffold beam. The electric circuit was connected, and the doomed man dropped hrough the fatal trap, a distance of about ive feet, at exactly 1:22 o'clock. Physician immediately went under the scaffold and felt his pulse, which fell to 20 pulsations er minute. Three minutes later it rose up to 100, but in six minutes was imperceptle, and life was declared extinct. Phys ians state that his neck was completely roken by the fall. The body was taken to the Morgue and dressed, and will be buried to-morrow by his friends.

LEPROSY OF THE JEWS.

EDITOR ALTOONA, PA., CALL :-- I wish to say something in praise of that valuable medicine, CUTICURA, which I saw advertised in your paper. I have had that old leprosy, of which you read in the Bible, where the Jews first got it among them, and did not know how to cure it. It has many other English names. I have had it on my body for over sixty years. No doctor could tell me what it was, and probably I never would have known had I not seen the advertisement in your valuable paper. First it is a scaly affection of the skin; next it looks like e same in my feet, knees and elbows, and by taking a microscope and looking at me it looks worse. In other words, we will call it ichthyosis, or fish skin: then comes on what I call the wild burning itch, that will strike you with a thousand electric itchy needles. You
